Ex-Convict Spiked to Cross by Captors

CRUCIFIED AS HE REFUSES TO JOIN ROBBERS

Physicians Remove Nails From Feet, Arms Of Victim; Who Has Chance To Live.

LEFT CHURCH MEETING

Seized By Former Pals At San Quetin, Forced To Steal Wood For Cross.

RENO, Nev.—Nailed to a crude wooden cross and left to die in screaming agony by his two former partners in crime, an ex-convict, who wanted to go straight was in Reno hospital today while every state law enforcement agency sought his crucifiers.

The victim, 27-year-old Edward Collins, was carried to the hospital on the cross after rescuers discovered him spreadeagled on the symbol of faith he had chosen to follow since his release from San Quentin three weeks ago.

Nails Removed.

Astounded surgeons swiftly anesthetized the former convict, removed the ten-penny nails from his feet and sutured the gaping wounds. They announced he would live, barring possible complications from infection.

Collins, interrogated, told this story.

He was leaving a Baptist Evangelical meeting last night. He met two men who had served time with him in the San Quentin, Cal., penitentiary, known to him only as "Swede" and "Dago." They asked him to "pull some jobs" with them. He refused. They were outraged by his virtue, and one of them said:

"All right, if you want to make a Christ of yourself, we'll help you."

Whereupon, at pistol point, he was ordered into a large black sedan.

First they drove to a lumber yard. There Collins was ordered to steal two pieces of lumber. He did so and the men drove him to an isolated spot along the Truckee river east of Reno.

"Here's where we get out," one of them said.

Nailed to Cross.

The men nailed one piece of

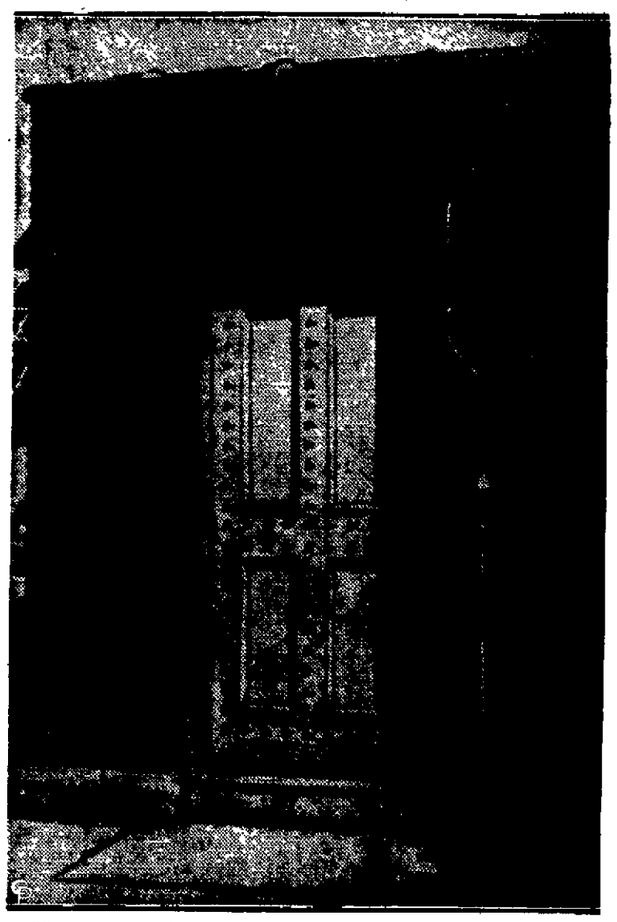
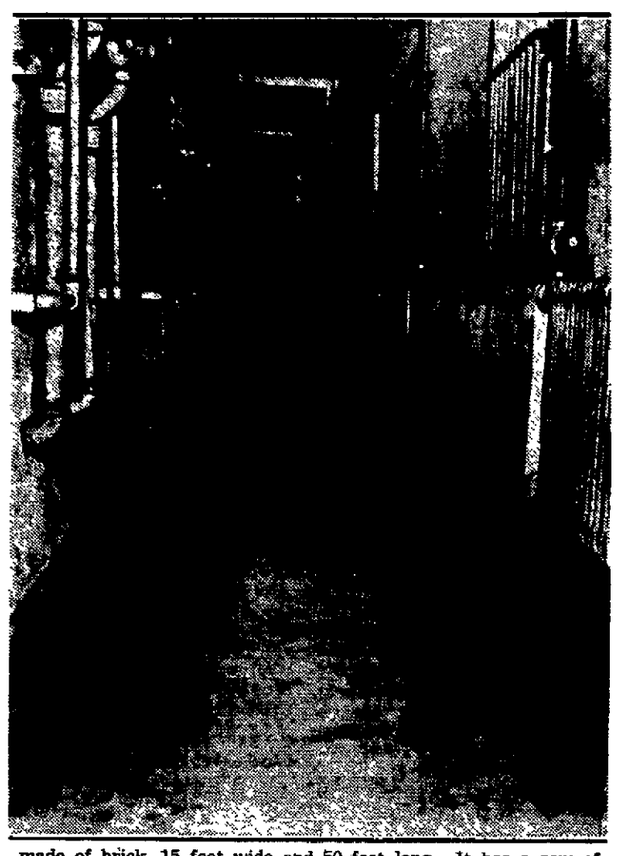
Views of Eastern Jail Where Four Convicts Were 'Baked'





Here are two views of the "isolation house" where four Pennsylvania convicts were roasted to death. Coroner Charles Hersch is conducting an investigation. The "Klondike" as it is called by prisoners of the Holmesburg county jail, is a small structure made of brick, 15 feet wide and 50 feet long. It has a row of 12 cells without windows, extending along one wall. In front of the cells is a corridor lined with radiators out of reach of the occupants. Picture at the right shows the radiator arrangement. At the left is the exterior of the building, with its solid steel door. Investigators charge that unruly prisoners were placed in the Klondike and the steam turned on, literally roasting four men to death.

Chancellor Of Exchequer Says British Might Have To Join War In Europe.

JOINT PURPOSE IN TALK

Warning Coupled With Plea For Peace In Cabinet Officer's Address.

(By Associated Press)

LANARK, Scotland — Sir John Simon, chancellor of the exchequer, served notice on an anxious world today that Great Britain might have to fight if Germany started a war in Central Europe.

The former foreign minister repeated, "as holding good today," Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain's declaration before the house of commons March 24 that "if war were to break out it would be unlikely to be confined to those who have assumed such obligations" — to aid Czechoslovakia against aggression.

An hour before the chancellor was scheduled to speak he revised his speech to put his own punch behind Chamberlain's March warning that Britain might be forced to fight.

"The beginning of a conflict is like the beginning of a fire in a high wind," he said.

"It may be limited at the start. But who can say how far it would spread or how much destruction it would do or how many may be called to beat it out?"

Might Be Wide Spread.

In another last-minute insertion, Sir John added this warning:

"This very case of Czechoslovakia may be so critical for the future of Europe that it would be impossible to assume a limit to the distrubance that a conflict might involve and every one in every country who considers the consequences has to bear that in mind."

Both Warning, Plea.

Sir John coupled a firm warning that there "is no limit to the reactions of war" today with an unmistakable plea to Chancellor Adolf Hitler to do his "duty" and take outside pressure off the dispute in Czechoslovakia where the

Dismisses Charges Against School Head

County Board Votes Unanimously to Throw Out Malfeasance Case When Robinson's Accusers Fail to Attend Hearing.

By a unanimous vote, the Richland county board of education today dismissed charges of malfeasance against Boyd Robinson, county superintendent of schools, because of lack of prosecution.

Four members of the Union rural school board in Franklin and Weller township, who had filed the charges with the county board, failed to appear at the hearing this morning at the superintendent's office in the courthouse.

Claim Authority Usurped.

The Union members had charged that the county superintendent usurped the authority of their board in submitting an application for PWA funds for a new high school before the Union board acted on the plan.

Neil S. Robinson, Madison township member of the county board, said: "There was no one at the meeting to show why the board should convict the superintendent, so there was nothing else to do but dismiss the case."

It was believed that the appointment of Leland Clever, member of the Union board from Weller township, to the county board two weeks ago, shifted the balance in the superintendent's favor. Previously two members of the five-member county board had opposed Robinson, two had favored him and one was neutral.

Clever, a Robinson backer, was appointed by Probate Judge C. J. Anderson after Floyd Hunt, Mansfield member of the board resigned because of non-residence in a rural district. Hunt had opposed Robinson.

Robinson was represented at today's hearing by Attys. A. S. Beach and J. V. Will, employed last month soon after the charges were filed.

PAYS $10,700 IN RELIEF BILLS

City Still Faces Indebtedness Of $42,000 After Cleaning Up May Accounts.

The city of Mansfield today paid relief bills totaling $10,715 for the month of May—but still was faced with an indebtedness of $42,000.

City Auditor Paul L. Kelley said that relief checks totaling $10,715 had been placed in the mails today leaving the relief fund $11,893 overdrawn. Kelley explained, however, that the May bills were paid because the city already had obtained the authority from the state tax commission to borrow $8,040.

Even if the money were on hand at present, he said, the relief fund would be still in the "red" $3,843. Kelley said a state allocation of $4,080 was received yesterday and had been applied to the deficit that had been carried over from last month.

A portion of the state allocation—$1,100 was used for administration costs while the remainder was paid on food bills.

Meanwhile city officials awaited word from the county commissioners certifying the amount of funds available to the city from anticipated state taxes for the next three years.

Council has already been told by the county auditor that they can borrow $55,000 as 70 per cent of the anticipated collection of delinquent taxes which is to be used to match the funds borrowed on anticipated state taxes.

Rules Probate Deputies Can't Keep Appraiser Fees

Duffy Holds Court Aids Must Turn $2 They Receive From Estates Over to County Treasury.

Attorney General Herbert S. Duffy ruled today that Richland county probate deputies cannot legally accept a fee of $2 for serving as appraisers of estates but must turn the money over to the county treasury.

Probate Judge C. J. Anderson, who asked for the opinion after state examiners had criticized the practice, said he expected examiners to return findings against three of his deputies as a result of the ruling.

3 Deputies Involved.

Court records showed that R. K. Clark, Ralph M. Hardy and Ralph Carroll, probate deputies, had received appraisal fees during the past year.

Judge Anderson said Clark, who handles the majority of the inventories of estates, probably received the largest amount in fees. Collections averaged about $2 per month for each deputy.

The judge added that he had permitted the practice since examiners in the past had made no mention of it and he believed it to be legal. He pointed out that deputies who served before his term as judge collected larger amounts than are received by deputies now.

"Deputies usually act as appraisers at the request of executors of estates, but they must be approved by the court," Judge Anderson said.

Hardy, who is the only notary in probate court, may retain notary fees collected in his capacity, provided his work is done outside his court duties, Duffy's ruling said.

Eyston's mighty "Thunderbolt," painted black to overcome a glaring sun which robbed him of a new record last Wednesday, hit 347.49 miles per hour on the outward trip and 343.51 miles per hour on the return jaunt.

BRAIN-TRUSTER QUITS CABINET

Berle Resigns As Roosevelt's Assistant Secretary Of State; Treaty Finished.

(By United Press)

HYDE PARK, N. Y.—President Roosevelt today accepted the resignation of Adolf A. Berle, jr., assistant secretary of state, and last of the original brain-trusters.

Berle was appointed last February and it was understood that he was to work on negotiations for a British-American trade treaty. In his letter of resignation he said that "certain work" had been forwarded, and this was taken to mean that the long-awaited treaty was ready.

He was the second member of the "little" cabinet to resign this week. Roswell Magill, undersecretary of the treasury, was the other.

Berle, a member of the faculty of Columbia university, New York City, and identified with Mayor F. H. LaGuardia's fusion administration, said he was resigning because he had accepted office on a temporary basis. He said the president could make his resignation effective any time in September that he wished. The president made it effective on Sept. 15.

Berle first became identified with the New Deal when he, Prof. Ray Moley, who later was an assistant secretary of state, and Charles Taussig, economist, went to Warm Springs in 1932 for a series of conferences with the then president-elect.

From time to time he was called into White House discussions but never took a government post until invited to last February by Mr. Roosevelt.

BLASTS 'PLOT'

Coroner Says Guards Conspire To Hush 'Heat Cure.'

PHILADELPHIA —(AP)— Coroner Charles H. Hersch charged today there was a "definite conspiracy on the part of guards to cover up what really happened" at the Philadelphia county prison where four convicts met mysterious deaths in super-heated punishment cells.

The coroner said the "conspiracy" had temporarily delayed his plans to arrest "higher ups" and a "blackjack squad" of guards who he blamed for turning steam on in a battery of large radiators outside the cells and "literally baking the prisoners to death."

The convicts' bruised, nude bodies were found Monday in the prison "klondike" where unruly prisoners were given the "heat cure."

Verdict Delayed In Fight To Block Shelby Street Closing

After a hearing which lasted an hour and half, the question of closing Shelby's Main street for a fair in September was still undecided at noon today.

Common Pleas Judge C H. Huston, who is hearing the case, ordered a recess until 1 p. m. today and instructed the defense counsel to produce the minutes of a meeting of Shelby council at which the ordinance permitting the closing was passed.

The minutes were requested by Atty. George W. Biddle, counsel for Ernest Brunk, Shelby radio store and filling station operator who brought the action against the city, contending that the ordinance closing the street was passed illegally at a meeting Aug. 1.

With the courtroom crowded with Shelby city officials and business men, Brunk testified that his business dropped off from a daily average of $26 to $4 during the four days of last year's street fair.

In his petition, he asserts that council passed the street closing ordinance without three readings on separate days, and that closing Main street would damage his business.

Frequent objections to Atty. Biddle's questions concerning

12-Plane Caravan Brings City Official 'Invite' To Air Races

Mansfield got a sort of preview of the National Air Races—to be held in Cleveland, Sept. 3, 4 and 5 — when a caravan of 12 planes stopped at the airport here this morning, bringing with them greetings from Mayor Harold H. Burton of the lake metropolis, and an invitation to attend the races.

Some 500 persons were at the airport to see the planes come and to listen to the brief ceremonies.

The caravan, made up of small planes painted in gay colors, began arriving at 10:15 a. m. and the last one settled down on the airport 15 minutes later.

Heading the caravan was E. W. (Pop) Cleveland, veteran pilot who has been flying since 1911. With him was Miss Helene St. Andrews, who is the Miss Air Tour of the good will project, and who carried greetings from Cleveland's mayor to Mayor Claude M. Hunter of Mansfield.

Mayor Hunter welcomed the flyers and read Mayor Burton's greetings over the public address system which had been installed at the airport. After a cordial invitation to attend the air races, Burton pointed out the importance of taking advantage of modern mechanical advances.

PREPARE CHILDREN FOR SCHOOL, HEALTH CHIEF URGES PARENTS

With the opening of the school year only a little more than a week away, Dr. Roy C. Rehder, city-county health commissioner, today urged parents to prepare their children "physically and mentally for the classroom."

"This preparedness should consist of more than just pencils and books and new clothes to carry on successfull studies," Dr. Rehder said. "As necessary as they may be to the child in his school work, they are of minor importance as compared to the fitness of his body, physically and mentally."

Dr. Rehder pointed out that the state of the child's health contributes greatly to the progress in his studies, that such defects as diseased tonsils and adenoids, bad teeth and poor vision and impaired hearing handicap the child and place him at a disadvantage with his schoolmates. Improper diet and faulty health habits also may bring on conditions that will hamper him, the commissioner added.

"Parents should realize the importance of the child starting school in the best physical and mental condition," Dr. Rehder said. "These days prior to the opening of school should be devoted to a checking on the condition of the child by a visit to the family physician and dentist."

He called the attention of parents to the protection of their children against communicable diseases.

"In spite of the fact that effective protection against diphtheria, smallpox and typhiod fever are available, very few children in Richland county at this time have received the benefit of this protection," Dr. Rehder said.

130 INDUSTRIAL CLAIMS FILED

Richland county escaped without a fatal industrial accident in July although county workers filed 130 claims with the Ohio Industrial commission during the month, the commission's report showed today.

Injuries suffered by three industrial workers caused permanent partial disability, while 17 lost over seven days' time as a result of their injuries, and eight lost seven days or less.

The majority of the claims, or 103, reported accidents which required brief medical treatment. The total time lost by county workers during the month was 2,289 days.

'CHRIST JESUS' SCIENTIST TOPIC

Lesson-Sermon Will Be Read At Service Tomorrow.

"Christ Jesus" is the subject of the Lesson-Sermon which will be read in Church of Christ, Scientist, Sunday.

The Golden Text is: "Thou, Beth-lehem Ephratah, though thou be little among the thousands of Judah, yet out of thee shall he come forth unto me that is to be ruler in Israel; whose goings forth have been from of old, from everlasting" (Micah 5:2).

Among the citations which comprise the Lesson-Sermon is the following from the Bible: "And when he had called unto him his twelve disciples, he gave them power against unclean spirits, to cast them out, and to heal all manner of sickness and all manner of disease" (Matthew 10:1).

SATURDAY, AUGUST 27, 1938.

Word comes that none of Charley McCarthy's eminent uncles are to be "purged."

Testimony in that Hines case leads to a suspicion that there has been some crookedness about gambling in New York—instead of being the honorable business that it is in Ohio.

Mansfield's Unfinished Airport.

WHILE there may be slowness in general acceptance of the idea, it should not be long until majority opinion in Mansfield favors completion of the municipal airport, north of the city, to the extent of planning and carrying through the further improvements needed to gain acceptance as a commercial airport.

Today's visit of about a dozen planes, as a part of the goodwill tour in the interest of the national air races soon to be held in Cleveland, gives an inkling of the rapid strides being made in aerial navigation.

Off of the routes of regular air traffic, it is sometimes difficult for Mansfielders to realize the extent to which passenger travel and transportation of mail, freight and express by air has grown within the past few years.

More than 2,300 airports, in the several classifications, are now being operated in the United States. Many smaller cities are being added to this list each year.

Much work has already been done and money spent in bringing Mansfield airport to its present partially usable condition, which permits daytime landing and take-off.

For dependable commercial use, however, it will be necessary to construct hard-surfaced runways, install lights, erect a hangar and meet any other standard provisions of the department of commerce.

Just how these further requirements are to be financed has not yet been worked out in a practicable way, but it is one of the things that merits serious attention with a view to proceeding as soon as possible.

Primary Elections and Party Lines.

OBJECTION is raised, from time to time, over the requirement that voters at a primary election declare themselves as Democrats or Republicans.

When the primary system was originally evolved as a method of nominating candidates of the two major parties it was apparently assumed that every voter was either a Democrat or a Republican, and was sufficiently proud of his party affiliation to make no secret of it.

But times have changed in more recent years and party lines are not so closely drawn.

It appears that now, when expediency directs, there are Republicans who will unashamedly ask for a Democratic ballot at a primary election, and that there is even an occasional Democrat who is so lost to the teachings of his forebears that he represents himself as a Republican when he votes at the primary.

Nor is the whole thing as simple as it was back in the horse-and-buggy days, when a voter was either a Democrat or a Republican, "and that's all they are to it," as a budding statesman was once wont to remark.

Under the least comprehensive division of political alignment there are now Democrats, New Dealers, Republicans and Progressives—so the old two-way primary plan is no longer adequate.

This may account for President Roosevelt's recent criticism of Republicans voting in Democratic primaries, with special reference to the defeat of New Deal Senator Pope in Idaho. He regards this as "a violation of basic political morality," and basic political morality is something that isn't to be fooled with by opponents of the New Deal, he'd have you understand.

Just what sort of "political morality" entered into the Democratic assistance accorded in nominating the Republican candidate for congress in this Seventeenth Ohio district is, of course, too minor a matter for presidential perturbation.

There is just a possibility, also, that Governor Chandler, of Kentucky, and Senator George, of Georgia, may have some ideas of their own as to what constitutes "basic political morality."

Farmward Trend.

ONE of the most interesting facts about occupational trends today is the movement back to the farm. For half a century it has been the other way—toward the cities—growing steadily in strength until lately it began to look as if many of our farm areas would be depopulated. But the great depression, with the slow recovery and the lessons it has taught, changes people's attitude toward life and seems to be restoring the point of view of their grandparents.

A recent national poll of families on unemployment relief, who altogether number perhaps 20,000,000 individuals, and nearly all in cities, indicates that more than half of them would move to farms if they had a chance. They would be content, they say, with a house to live in and ability to meet expenses on a simple basis as they go along. These satisfactions, they feel, would more than compensate for city opportunities, hampered as those opportunities are by economic uncertainties.

It is well known, too, that in most parts of the country rural life itself has better opportunities than it used to have, better education for the children, less loneliness, more social life and co-operative effort, easier access to town, more all-round facilities for living.

Geneva Prepares.

JUST about the last bit of disillusionment regarding peace comes with the news that the city of Geneva, Switzerland, has set a "tank trap" within 500 yards of the League of Nations palace. That shows in a spectacular way the lack of faith in organized peace which exists in what was intended to be the very center of world peace.

There is said to be such a trap on every road leading into Geneva. They are concrete strips running across the asphalt pavement, somewhat like traps dug for bears or elephants. The tank is supposed to come blundering along and break through.

WASHINGTON—Take a strip of bamboo the size and length of a split pencil, sharpen one end and spear it through a half dozen small chunks of chicken, pork, liver, veal, or some of each, then twirl the bits over a charcoal fire until done, and there you have it—sati.

More will be told about sati after we explain that for a long time we have considered it our duty to extract from traveling notables recipes of choice dishes they find in foreign parts. And thus we are able to disclose the favorite foods of Walter Foote, Texas' contribution to the foreign service, who recently returned from Batavia, Java, where he was consul general.

The beauty about native sati, explains Mr. Foote, is its novelty and the variety of ways it can be served. Most fun is to have a cluster of these little bamboo skewers already loaded with odds and ends of meat and let the guests informally toast their own over the glowing charcoal burner.

* * *

Don't Spear Yourself.

EACH guest must have several individual little dishes with varieties of sauce, such as peanut butter, soya bean sauce and mustard. When the little lumps of meat are sizzled properly, one at a time is dipped into the sauce and eaten off the stick.

There is technique about that. The Javanese Emily Post holds that only about three little chunklets of meat should be eaten off the skewer before a fork is used to shove the rest forward. But an experienced sati-man can bite off four and sometimes five niblets without sticking the bamboo skewer into a tonsil. Guests, however, should be warned of the hazards.

If the toasting is done beforehand by the cook, several skewer loads of bitelets should be served each guest. Sometimes olives or small onions can be loaded on the skewer between lumps of liver or white meat.

* * *

Big Meals Recommended.

ANOTHER choice Batavian dish is nasi goreng. We asked Mr. Foote if it was named after Hitler's right hand man, the Nazi Goering, but Mr. Foote said no. The two words mean in Javanese simply "fried rice." Here is what is involved:

Boil a quantity of rice until it is about half done, leaving the kernels fairly hard. Then put in some chopped pork, veal, liver or chicken. Add grated coconut. Pound some green or red peppers into a pulp and add them.

The result is a pasty product which you patty into lumps like country sausage and fry in butter or coconut oil. Mr. Foote was simply ecstatic about nasi goreng. The average middle class or well-to-do family in Batavia will serve it as often as three meals a day, although usually only twice.

Mr. Foote says wise people eat great quantities of substantial food in the tropics so as to have strength to withstand the drain of energy from the constant, profuse sweating. He spent six years in the tropics eating nasi goreng and sati and other native dishes, followed by an occasional stiff slug of gin, and arrived here hale and hearty.

Timely Editorial

Fewer Public Enemies.

The capture of public enemies is not as common as it once was, the reason being that for the most part they have been jailed or killed through the combined efforts of local, state and federal police. Among the last of the old-time desperadoes to be apprehended is Floyd Hamilton, cohort of Clyde Barrow and Bonnie Parker. He is behind bars in Dallas, Tex., and in all reason may be expected to remain in durance for some lengthy time to come.

Naturally, the nation will never be rid entirely of some few misguided individuals who for some reason or another believe they can buck all the rules of society for their own advantage. They may be terrors for a brief while, but in the end they wind up either dead or in prison. The increasing certainty of this fact has made for a more orderly and more law-abiding country.

No doubt it will be years before the United States is as free from the notorious kind of criminals as England, but continued progress is that direction is heartening to the great mass of our people who want to live in peace and security. — Columbus Dispatch.

Best Insurance Against Radicals

—By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON—On the third anniversary of the date on which the Federal Social Security act became effective Senator Arthur Capper of Kansas, who was prominent among the statesmen who co-operated to draft the law, broadcast a talk in the course of which he said:

"Unless government recognizes and helps to make possible the opportunity for every industrious and honest individual to own property of his own, the lack of that opportunity will do more to spread communism than any number of communist orators and any amount of Communist propaganda. Unemployment, lack of opportunity, destitution, distress, despair—these, not oratory and propaganda, are the breeders of communism and revolt."

Exactly. If conditions are satisfactory folk are not going to want to change them for some new system. If they are unsatisfactory there is bound to be a demand for change, and no investigation of the demand for it is going to head off that demand.

* * *

HARDLY SATURATED

I suppose there are some Communistic missionaries in this country. And some Fascists and Nazis.

I don't see how they can be prevented from enfiltering into any normally un-Communistic, un-Fascist or un-Nazi organization, such as the C. I. O., the A. F. of L., any church membership or anything else.

Why, I know an esteemed fellow member of the congressional press gallery and of the National Press club—Laurence Todd, Washington correspondent of the Telegraph Agency of the Union of Soviet Republics. Does that one membership prove that our press gallery and Press club are saturated with communism?

For that matter, Nazi and Fascist newspapers are represented in our journalistic ranks, too. These boys are more than welcome; they are informative.

* * *

LEWIS' VIEWPOINT

The whole nub of it is:

There are not enough of them to wad a shotgun.

I doubt that they are numerous enough to signify in any other set-up.

When John L. Lewis was organizing industrial unionisms he told me that he believed his plan to be the best antidote to communism, Nazi-ism and fascism, and I'm convinced that he meant it. I question that any one of these groups has horned in since then sufficiently to signify.

THE FISH PROBE

Representative Hamilton Fish of New York saw "red" spooks a few years ago and started an investigation of their activities similar to the one Representative Martin Dies of Texas is pushing now.

It fizzled out as Dies' will presently.

Fish's case collapsed when, the New Yorker having been tipped off to a cache of subversive literature in a packing case in Baltimore, seized it and found it to contain nothing but two cabbage heads.

* * *

AND DIES' INQUIRY

Suppose Dies does demonstrate that certain folk THINK so-and-so. What's he going to do about it?

I once asked this question of former Representative Arthur Free of California, a pasttime "red" investigator. "Well," agreed Free, "as a lawyer, I admit that we have to PROVE our case by overt acts, but it's what they THINK that we try to convict them of."

Ditto Dies. What he's trying to prove is anti-American cerebration.

What Representative Dies has undertaken to call his committee is the "committee on un-American activities."

It generally is known in Washington as the "un-American committee."

Begin Weaving a Pattern.

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

I DOUBT if there have ever been as many demoralizing lives in America as there are today.

Not criminal lives. Not diseased lives. But lives that have unravelled—inwardly. Outwardly, they may seem orderly and productive. They may seem to follow a safe-and-sure social pattern. But inside there's CHAOS.

They are never SURE any more . . . they give no clean-cut opinions or aim . . . no definite design for living. Everything is blurred . . . topsy-turvy . . . mish-mash. And the result is a dreadful haunting sense of unreality . . . walking nightmare . . . an increasing feeling that nothing leads anywhere . . . nothing's worth while.

And the cause is easy enough to find, if one looks for it. They feel that life has gone to pieces—AND IT HAS. The old beliefs have disappeared . . . the old codes have been smashed. The rules and routines which served our fathers are useless for us. The very material mechanism of existence is totally different. We have been robbed of our energizing risks and adventures . . . of our ancient sources of inspiration and pride. Who are we? Why are we? Where are we going? What's the use of it all? Like the narrow, desperate circlings of caged squirrels, our minds wheel endlessly, aimlessly within their narrow darkness . . .

In every home, in every city, in every state, millions of demoralizing spirits are circling like that . . . endlessly revolving in chaos.

What's the answer?

STOP CIRCLING. GRAB SOMETHING. START WEAVING A PATTERN.

Don't wait for someone to explain life to you . . . or explain you to yourself. Don't expect someone to put your life in order . . . or hand you its meaning on a silver platter.

START MAKING THAT ORDER . . . START FINDING THAT MEANING . . . START MAKING YOUR PATTERN.

Grab the first thing that comes to hand—the first chance that offers—the first responsibility that calls—and proceed, from that beginning, to build order for yourself out of aimless confusion—a pattern out of pandemonium.

When I can't (I've told you this before) do anything else—when I'm too sunk or mad or worried or desperate to do any of my regular jobs—I CLEAN OUT MY BUREAU DRAWERS OR OFFICE FILES. Which for chaos, usually have the City Dump backed off the map. Shoelaces, bobby pins, sachets, busted heads, unanswered letters, stray stamps, odd clippings, lost memos—everything gone wild. As wild as the dizzy thoughts whirling, whirling in my tired head. But I begin—AND I KEEP ON—

And bit by bit, out of that ugly, aimless disorder, there comes sense and system—A SIMPLE BUT SATISFYING PRIDE OF PERFORMANCE.

"In the beginning God created the heaven and the earth. And the earth was without form, and void; and darkness was upon the face of the deep. And the Spirit of God moved upon the face of the waters. And God said—Let there be light: and there was light."

It was that way in the beginning. It is that way today. Life for you, too, is "without form and void and there is darkness on the face of the deep."

BUT YOU CAN MOVE UPON THE FACE OF THE WATERS . . . YOU CAN CALL FOR LIGHT AND THERE WILL BE LIGHT.

Don't demand immediate miracles . . . sudden revelations. Whoever you are . . . weary wife or mother, bewildered husband or father . . . discouraged, defiant youngster—there is YOUR answer.

START MOVING THROUGH THAT CHAOS. START MAKING A DESIGN. START WALKING TOWARD LIGHT BY DOING THE LITTLE THING . . . THE NEXT THING.

It won't be easy at first. It may seem senseless, trivial. You'll want to give up. But go on . . . GO ON . . .

And presently life will mean something . . .

AND SUDDENLY THERE WILL BE LIGHT!

Prove all things: hold fast to that which is good. — 1 Thess. 5:21.

What's Happened?

A Week-End Summary of Current Events.

J. B. MATTHEWS is a bespectacled, glib, professional ex-officer of a consumers' research outfit. He calls himself a disillusioned former "fellow traveler" with communists. Testifying at congressional hearings in Washington recently, he said he had organized the League for Peace and Democracy at Stalin's indirect orders.

Reds hope, he said, to split the Democratic party and gain power, and to sabotage industry and stir up mutiny if the U. S. ever fights the U. S. S. R.

They deceive celebrities and hide behind even Shirley Temple's skirts, he suggested, asserting that most of Hollywood — except for Mickey Mouse, Snow White and Charlie McCarthy — has been "signed up" by the "united front."

"If I am a red or a dupe of the reds," said New Jersey's ex-Gov. Harold G. Hoffman, who was among those mentioned, "then Dr. Matthews is the Duchess of Windsor."

The congressmen also listened to charges that reds have penetrated colleges, that the Workers' Alliance uses taxpayers' money to spread communism, and that California communists support the Democratic party because of its foreign policy.

Chief Inquisitor Dies then asked President Roosevelt to direct the justice department to co-operate with the committee. And the inquiring solons decided to switch the spotlight from leftists to rightists, and hold hearings in other cities.

NLRB, AFL & CIO.

President Roosevelt said this week that the national labor law should be clarified, and that the problem would be discussed with NLRB representatives and spokesmen for both capital and labor.

AFL chiefs, conferring at Atlantic City on plans for the federation's fall convention in Houston, then agreed to advocate amendments to both the labor relations act and the wage-hour law that would curb the administrative and quasi-judicial powers delegated by congress. The AFL council also (1) discussed reports of internal troubles, allegedly communistic, in CIO unions, (2) refused to join CIO in setting up a Latin American labor organization, and (3) decided to intensify the federation's fight against CIO in the maritime and coal industries.

CIO Chief John L. Lewis, meanwhile, was told by ousted officers of the United Auto Workers: "Here, John, we've made a mess of it (the UAW). You come in. If you can't save it, no one can." They wanted him to appoint an administrator for the auto union and approve a special convention, but UAW President Homer Martin's faction wanted "John" to keep his hands off. Lewis listened to both sides, and suggested a truce.

* * *

TVA's Foes Probed.

Congressional checker-uppers on TVA went to Chattanooga, Tenn., this week to study private interests' activities. Private utilities said Francis Biddle, the committee's counsel, have tried to prevent sale of TVA's power to municipalities by means of "false propaganda, injunctions and organization of so-called citizens' committees."

Then Biddle presented testimony that the corporation headed by Wendell L. Willkie had contributed $20,000 to a campaign against an $8,000,000 bond issue for a municipal distribution plant at Chattanooga. And Willkie, in New York, expressed regret that more had not been spent to "overcome the propaganda and contributions of the federal government and the TVA."

At Home

State's Story.

Tammany Leader James J. Hines, tanned and smiling, played golf last Sunday on Long Island. Monday morning, calm and attentive, he was back in a New York courtroom for the second week of his trial on charges that he was the guardian angel of the late Dutch Schultz's $20,000,000-a-year policy racket.

George Weinberg, Schultz's former business manager who was indicted with Hines and pled guilty, testified he had paid Hines $500 a week as political "fixer" for the policy syndicate. He said he had been present at a meeting when a city magistrate agreed to "take care" of a policy case for Hines, and said Hines had got policemen demoted or transferred for raiding policy banks.

Weinberg added, next day, that Schultz had ordered him to help Hines elect William C. Dodge as district attorney in 1933 and that the syndicate contributed $30,000 to Dodge's campaign. Dodge, in an out-of-court statement, denied it. Likewise the magistrate mentioned by Weinberg asserted he had been falsely implicated.

And while Weinberg underwent cross-examination, greying defendant Hines electrified the courtroom by shouting at the witness: "You know you lie!"

In Chicago, meanwhile, State's Attorney Thomas J. Courtney continued an anti-gambling drive, and the Chicago Church federation—declaring that "a scandal of first magnitude is brewing"—demanded an official investigation of what it called the "take" in Chicago's gambling business to determine "what officials participate in this unholy profit."

* * *

Anti-War Pledge.

Diplomats made a pact to outlaw war 10 years ago. This week, at Poughkeepsie, N. Y., representatives of 47 nations young folk made a pact to do all they can to avoid wars of aggression.

It took 600 years to develop parliaments, and it will be centuries before this movement is realized fully, Dr. James T. Shotwell, head of the Carnegie Endowment Fund, told this World Youth congress. "I am willing to sit down," he continued, "with fascists or communists, religionists or irreligionists . . . to promote the possibility of peace. . . ."

* * *

Farm Problem.

Last year U. S. farmers took in $8,600,000,000. This year, government estimators figured last week-end, they'll get $7,500,000,000. And Washington dispatches called the new farm problem "perhaps the most difficult sinces the 1934-36 drought period.

Two factors were blamed: (1) Good weather, which enabled farmers to produce bumper crops in 1937 and '38 despite government-sponsored acreage cuts; (2) bad business, which reduced city folks' ability to buy farm products.

The farmers' dark cloud had a thin silver lining: While farm prices have tobogganed since last summer, prices of things farmers buy also have dipped.

People

Maid Trouble.

Symphony Conductor Karl Krueger's wife, a former Chicago society girl, tried "to be kind" to her maid. Shot twice, Mrs. Krueger fought for life this week, and Hollywood police blamed the maid's husband. He was "insanely jealous," the maid said; he was "a troublemaker," Mrs. Krueger added.

"I only shot to scare her," police quoted him as saying. "She employed my wife . . . then dominated her so completely that she broke up our home."

Death In a Dungeon.

To protest against a diet of hamburger, spaghetti, cheese and fried eggplant, 650 of 1,480 county prisoners at Holmesburg, Pa., refused to eat supper one night last week-end. The hunger strike petered out, and its leaders were locked in "punishment" cells. There, Monday morning, four were found dead, their bodies nude and battered and their hands shriveled. The coroner reported they had been "baked to death." Two guards were arrested.

* * *

Trail's End.

Floyd Hamilton, 30, and Ted Walters, 25, broke out of a Texas jail several months ago. Sought in six states, suspected of scores of robberies, they were caught, unarmed and nearly penniless, last week-end at Dallas.

Travel

Life Ends at 41.

Frank Hawks, an Iowa boy who learned to fly in California, set 214 air speed records. After a crackup a year ago at Newark, he declared: "I've had my day. I passed the 40-year mark the other day and I've decided to take it easy now." He became an airplane firm's vice president in charge of sales. And this week while taking J. Hazard Campbell, a director of the company, for a trial spin, Hawks struck an electric line and his plane crashed in flames on a polo field near Buffalo. Both occupants were killed.

* * *

Test Flights.

France's big seaplane, "Lieutenant de Vaisseau Paris," headed across the Atlantic on an experimental flight to New York, via the Azores.

America's new "air dreadnaught," a $1,000,000 four-motored naval plane, was tried out recently near San Diego.

Eye Robs Eyston.

Capt. George Eyston's seven-ton "Thunderbolt" flashed over a mile of Utah's Bonneville salt flats Wednesday morning at 347.155 miles an hour. That was nearly 36 m. p. h. faster than the Englishman's world-record round trip over the same course in the same car last year. But it didn't count, because the official electric-eye timing device went out of whack during Eyston's required return run.

* * *

Subway Crash.

Almost exactly 10 years after New York City's last bad subway collision, two of the underground trains that carry more than 1,500,000,000 passengers a year collided this week, killing two persons, injuring 51.

lumber across the other, making a cross. Collins was told to strip. Pistols were pointed at him and he obeyed. Then, he was commanded to lie on the cross and extend his arms "just like Christ did."

Collins said he screamed and pleaded for mercy, but the men nailed him to the cross, poured kerosene on his clothes, set them on fire, and fled. Soon afterwards, he said, a motorist came along and called police.

Collins was released from San Quentin Aug. 3. He said he had been going straight.

Four-inch spikes were driven through each of Collins' hands and one through both of his feet. The cross was coated with blood.

Police believed that Collins knew his assailants and that their motivation had been less casual than Collins said.

He admitted that he had been associated with "Swede" and "Dago" in criminal enterprises and that they had been involved in the San Diego payroll robbery for which he served time. He said he had known them for eight years, yet insisted that he did not know their true names.

The nails had passed through his hands and feet to penetrate the wood to a depth of one inch, not enough to have held him had the cross been raised but to make it impossible for him to free himself. His clothes were burning when police arrived.

RAZES STATION

Fire Of Unknown Origin Causes $2,000 Damages.

SHELBY—Fire of an unknown origin razed a filling station one mile southeast of Shelby on the Mansfield road early today. Damage was estimated at $2,000. Neighbors formed a bucket brigade, but were unable to stem the blaze.

A passing motorist, Charles Sharkey, jr., of Shelby, reported the fire to the Shelby fire department, but the department did not make the run as the fire protection contract held with Jackson township expired in July.

Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Patton, who operated the station, were away at the time of the fire. The building was owned by Mrs. Alex Innis of Shelby.

CRESTLINE CHURCH SCENE OF PRETTY WEDDING CEREMONY

CRESTLINE — St. Joseph's Catholic church was the scene of a pretty wedding this morning at 9 o'clock when Rev. Fr. F. A. Slattery united in marriage Miss Laura Landgraf, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph J. Landgraf of Painesville and John Peter Waltbillig of this place.

The single ring ceremony was witnessed by a large group of relatives and friends.

Two large bouquets of gladioli in colors of yellow, white and pink were at either side of the alter and other bouquets of garden flowers, ferns, palms and candelabra were also used as decorations.

Nuptial music was played by Miss Sarah Dunn, church organist and the adult choir sang the mass. The offertory, "Ave Maria" was sung by Miss Genevieve Reindl.

Attending the couple were the bride's sister Miss Kathryn Landgraf of Painesville and the groom's brother-in-law, Joseph Kosa of Gypsum.

Ushers were Arthur Landgraf of Painesville, brother of the bride, and N. B. Mayer of Crestline.

For her wedding the bride wore a floor length white chiffon frock made with high neck, puffed sleeves, fitted girdle and full skirt, self covered buttons fastened the waist down the back. Her finger tip veil was caught with a halo of orange blossoms.

Her maid of honor wore corn flower blue marquisette made floor length with full skirt. Her rhinestone Juliet cap had a face veil of blue. Silver slippers completed her costume and her flowers were blue delphinium and Briercliffe roses.

A short reception for all relatives and friends was held at the groom's home following the ceremony. This was followed by a breakfast for immediate relatives and the bridal party at the Blue Lantern. Covers were placed for 30, the bride's cake forming the centerpiece for the long table.

For traveling the bride wore a black and white chiffon dress with black hat and slippers and other accessories of white.

The bride was graduated from St. Mary's parochial and Harvey high schools at Painesville and from St. Joseph's hospital school of nursing at Ann Arbor, Mich. She had been employed at Emergency hospital in Crestline since March and resigned that position in view of her marriage.

The groom is the son of Mrs Catherine Waltbillig of Germany. He has made his home with his aunt Miss Margaret Waltbillig, at 322 North Thoman street since coming to this country 13 years ago, where upon their return from their wedding trip the couple will reside.

Out of town relatives and friends were present for the wedding from Ann Arbor and Howell, Mich., Painesville, Jackson and Gypsum.

TELLS GERMANY SHE'LL FIGHT

Britain Gives Warning And Appeals To Hitler To End Czech Tension.

The chancellor of the exchequer spoke at a Conservative party demonstration in this Scottish town after significant conferences during the week with Foreign Secretary Viscount Halifax.

His speech clearly reflected Britain's grave anxiety lest Chancellor Hitler come to a point where he is ready to thrust armed might across the German frontier to help his Sudeten followers get land and power by force of guns.

Reports, persistent but unconfirmed, that Germany already had warned other capitals that such crossroads might be near gave Sir John's speech added point.

'Holds Good Today.'

Britain's position on Czechoslovakia was "fully and accurately" explained by Prime Minister Chamberlain on March 24, Sir John told his listeners.

"That declaration holds good today," he said. "There is nothing to add or to vary in its content."

Chamberlain then refused a prior pledge of armed aid to Czechoslovakia in the event of aggression but declared:

"Where peace and war are concerned, legal obligations are not alone involved and if war were to break out it would be unlikely to be confined to those who have assumed such obligations.

"It would be impossible to say where it would end and what governments might become involved. . . . The inexorable pressure of facts might well prove more powerful than formal pronouncements."

Churchill Assails Hitler's Activity.

THEYDON BOIS, Eng.—(AP)—Winston Churchill, first lord of the admiralty in the World war, assailed Chancellor Adolf Hitler of Germany today for "endangering peace" by putting 1,500,000 soldiers on a war footing.

He declared the British government was right in letting the world know it was capable of "doing its duty".

The house of commons member spoke at an open air meeting of his constituents in Essex.

The elder statesman who frequently has been a bitter critic of Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain thus supported Sir John Simon's warnings today to the Reich, delivered only shortly before in Scotland.

"The whole state of Europe is moving steadily toward a climax which cannot long be delayed," Churchill declared.

CHAPTER 27

"Yes, I do," Noel said warmly.

She drove back rapidly, but the way seemed endless just the same. When they went in, Julian was not there, but there was a look of relief on Ruth Chester's face when she saw Noel with the red-haired young man. She took Jimmy's arm and said: "Just be very quiet and sit here by Laurie's side so in case she opens her eyes, she'll see you."

* * *

Laurie was very restless, tossing her head from one side of the bed to the other, flailing her thin little arms, using up what little reserve strength she might have had. Today had been one of her worst days. It seemed as if her frail hold on life might be loosened at any moment.

In her restlessness she turned her face toward Jimmy.

"Laurie," he whispered huskily.

It seemed as if her restlessness ceased in that moment. Her eyes opened. She looked straight into Jimmy's face. But there was no recognition in her eyes.

She was quieter, however, all during the long night, while Jimmy kept his vigil by her side.

Noel hurried back from Luigi's to find there was no change, however, in Laurie's condition, even though she was quieter.

The next mornnig, early, Noel was standing at the foot of the bed, Jimmy still in the chair he had occupied all night.

Laurie lay still, her eyes closed. Suddenly they opened. "Hello, Jimmy," she said weakly. "I wanted to—" but she was too weak to finish.

Her voice died away, her eyes closed wearily. A faint smile crossed her face and vanished. After which she lay motionless.

Noel had never been so frightened. Was this the end? She called Ruth, and the nurse hurried to the bed.

* * *

Ruth Chester needed but one look at Laurie. "She's sleeping naturally," she said. "She's going to get well."

Noel couldn't help noticing that there were tears in the nurse's eyes as she turned away from Laurie's bed. Jimmy sat for a moment with his boyish face covered with his hands. He may have been saying a prayer of gratitude because Laurie had safely passed the crisis.

Laurie slept for hours. Jimmy did not leave her except when he went out for some lunch. He wanted to be there, he said, when she awakened the next time.

It was late in the afternoon when Laurie was fully awake, though she had opened her eyes once or twice during the day and smiled at Jimmy. She was smiling at him again now and said weakly, "I was afraid I had dreamed you were here."

Jimmy bent his head and kissed her pallid little hand now lying outside the cheap bedspread. Noel could see that he was fighting to keep back the joyful tears.

Ruth Chester moved up to the bed then, and told Laurie she could look at Jimmy all she wanted to, but that she mustn't talk.

Laurie smiled understandingly.

Noel had lost count of the days since Laurie had been ill. But it seemed as if her convalescence was even longer. And Noel knew it wouldn't be long now before she could leave Luigi's for good. She was almost counting the minutes.

Laurie was able to sit up in the wooden rocker at last propped up with pillows. Jimmy was back at work, but he came in for a short while every evening.

* * *

One day Noel heard Ruth Chester and Julian talking in the hall. "You'll be famous for this case," Ruth said. "They'll be writing you up in the medical journals. Oh, Julian, I'm so glad."

"That's true only up to a certain point," Julian answered. "Jimmy's coming had a lot to do with Laurie's recovery. Just how much, we'll probably never know."

"You're too modest," Ruth retorted. "It was your treatment. Doctor Merridew is an old-fashioned doctor. If you hadn't used the new method—" but Noel didn't hear any more.

Laurie and Jimmy were very much in love. It was sweet to see them together, and heart-breaking too, for the barrier between them was not removed. However, Jimmy wasn't married. Noel had found that out. It was something else that had come between them.

A few more days and Ruth Chester was no longer on regular duty, although she came back once or twice a day to see that Laurie was convalescing properly. Noel couldn't help observing that she was most conscientious. No wonder Julian had said she was one of the best nurses in the city!

Laurie wasn't allowed to talk very much yet. But she and Jimmy didn't need to talk. It was enough for them just to be able to look into each other's eyes. Noel had never seen a love like this between two people. She probably wouldn't have if she had not embarked on her adventure. People in her world took love a great deal more casually. When they married, it was usually with the idea of getting a divorce if the marriage was not successful and try again with someone else. That was not the way marriage should be, Noel thought. It certainly was not the way she wanted her own marriage to be—just in case she should ever marry. But marriage for herself seemed to be growing more remote all the time.

Noel was doing a lot of thinking these days. She had to admit to herself that she was beginning to find many of Julian's ideas to be right.

* * *

That morning Noel phoned the Garwood home. Hichens answered She asked if the position was still open. Hichens said quickly, even a little anxiously, that it was. Noel told him then to tell Mrs. Garwood she would be ready for work on the following Monday.

Today was Wednesday. Noel didn't want to leave Laurie until she was certain she was quite able to go on with her work. She didn't know whether there might be danger of a relapse or not, but she was still a little uneasy about Laurie. And the thought of leaving her made Noel feel sad.

She tried to comfort herself in believing that Laurie and Jimmy were about to get their troubles straightened out. At last they were together often now and seemed happier. In this, however, Noel was wrong. For Laurie and Jimmy were again telling each other that it would be best not to see each other at all under the circumstances.

Working for the Garwood's, even though it seemed to be a strange household, would be wonderful after Luigi's, Noel told herself happily.

* * *

That morning Laurie and Noel talked before Laurie left. Laurie looked very unhappy again. Her eyes were sad. For the first time, Laurie explained the trouble between Jimmy and herself. "I made up my mind I—wouldn't ever see him again," she began, "because we couldn't hope to get married. I—didn't even answer his note." She stopped a moment then went on sadly. "It's his mother. When his father died, she made Jimmy promise her that he would never marry as long as she lived. It wasn't fair, but Jimmy gave his promise."

Noel looked at her wide-eyed. "But surely when Jimmy's happiness is at stake, his mother should be willing to release him from his promise."

Laurie shook her head. "You see," she continued, "Jimmy's mother has heart trouble, or else she—she pretends to have. And when Jimmy says anything about his promise, asks her to try to understand, why she simply has an attack. It frightens him very much."

"It's just selfishness on her part, I'm afraid," Noel said, trying to keep her voice from sounding indignant.

"Yes, I'm afraid that's what it is," Laurie agreed. "Of course, if there were more money, so Jimmy's mother could live in a hotel, things might be different. Jimmy makes $50 a week. He's one of the bosses out at the Barton Stave and Spoke, but his mother says that's not enough to support both his wife and his mother."

Money, Noel was thinking. It was the lack of it which seemed to cause all the trouble in the world. If Jimmy had more money, then his troubles and Laurie's probably would be over.

More and more Noel was learning how important money was to people who didn't have it. How even small amounts meant the difference to some people between happiness and despair. It didn't seem right that money should be placed before happiness, because you didn't have enough, or—had too much.

* * *

Laurie's eyes grew sad when Noel told her that she would be leaving for the Garwoods' on Monday. "You've been the most wonderful friend in the world, Noel," she said feelingly. "I know what you did for me while I was ill, and I think I know how you did it. Some day—I'm going to pay you back every cent."

"Now listen, don't you give that a thought. I—was glad to do what I could," Noel smiled tenderly. "You do not owe me a single penny."

"You got the money from Luigi, didn't you?" Laurie questioned.

Noel nodded. "He's rich—why not?" she tried to say nonchalantly.

"But it was dangerous for you to—do that," Laurie said a little unhappily.

"I'm not afraid of Luigi. And just think in a few days I won't ever see him any more." Noel made a mental reservation here. For, of course, when she found herself in position to, she was going to return all the extra money he had paid her. She thought she would just send it to him in a registered envelope, so she wouldn't have to see him.

A Farmer's Diary

The Firefly.

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

WHEN twilight comes, and a deeper shade of darkness follows, I love to watch the fireflies light up the neighboring fields and lowlands. They move gracefully about like tiny yellow lanterns, hovering in the damp air. Along streams and in swampy places, the undergrowth twinkles with their silent magic.

I followed the uncertain course of one of them, by the light that glowed beneath his wings. I found he had the power to dim or make his light more brilliant, for when I squeezed him slightly, his glowing ceased, and he became inconspicuous. At other times, perched in freedom upon my finger, his lamp was brighter.

I found a firefly on a stalk of grass. I severed the stem below, and carried him into the house. Here I placed him on the page of a newspaper, blew out the lamp, and found that his little light was great enough for me to read the words in single line, as he moved across the page.

The male, only, possesses the power of flight. The female remains among the dewy grasses, and has much the appearance of a worm, but the tiny glow of light, and the short, feeble legs tell a different story. It is she who is the heroine of the song "Shine Little Glow-worm, Glimmer."

These tiny beetles, so harmless in appearance, are killers of the first rank. They devour the common snails that creep about on moistened stones or stalks of grass. They creep, almost affectionately, upon the unwary snails, inject a substance that renders their victim unconscious, and begin to feed. By some peculiar power, they transform the tissues into semisolid and drink this soup for several days, until the shell is empty.

Before the dawn of medical history the firefly administered his own form of anesthetic, or twilight sleep, so that his repast of snail flesh might not be disturbed by the nightmares of his writhing victim.

HOROSCOPE

For Sunday, August 28.

SUNDAY'S HOROSCOPE holds promise of a particularly lively and intriguing day, with much occurring to frustrate, delay and mystify, both in the business and in the intimate relations. It is possible that a bereavement may be at the source of this, culminating in new arrangements, with a notable climax in love affairs or friendly associations. The end should be a happy one, after much confusion, perplexity and sorrow.

Those whose birthday it is may be prepared for a year in which a major anxiety or a bereavement may be instrumental in changing the smooth course of events.

A child born on this day may have a slow, plodding, retiring disposition. It may be gentle, kindly and friendly, though shy and sensitive. It may, however, be favored by its elders, from whom there might be bequests or other substantial gifts.

* * *

For Monday, August 29.

MONDAY'S ASTROLOGICAL forecast is a particularly happy and propitious one. There is presage of a sudden stroke of good fortune that may result in the fulfillment of a cherished heart's desire. All this involves much activity, both in a business connection and in social, domestic and romantic adjustments.

Those whose birthday it is may be assured of a particularly felicitous, prosperous and progressive year, with an outstanding stroke of good fortune assisting the wheels into grooves of a long-cherished heart's desire. New projects may be pushed under such stimulus, but the heart interest seems paramount.

A child born on this day may be capable, ambitious, magnanimous and gracious, with an intellect and personal bearing that may assist it to a place of power and influence in private as well as business life. It may be religiously inclined and should have a serviceable and happy life.

Marriage Meddlers

By ADELE GARRISON

Continuation of "Married Comrades"

I COULD not imagine what Lillian meant by saying, "Mary! Yes it all fits in," in reply to my assertion that nobody except Mary knew that I had learned anything about the menace hanging over Dicky.

Swiftly I went back over my colloquy with her. Nothing I had said could possibly be construed as an assertion—or even conjecture that Mary was cognizant of anything concerning the mystery surrounding her uncle, save what I myself had told her. Yet, Lillian evidently believed that she did. Then that meant—

The kaleidoscope of my mind turned again, bringing two memories—of voices: Mary's when she had said, "I know something about this," and now Lillian's, admitting, "I know a little." And yet, neither of them had vouchsafed any hint of what their knowledge might be. I wondered if their silence meant that they feared to hurt me by telling me what they knew, or were they perhaps not sure of what their knowledge meant, and were unwilling to alarm me by conjectures until they could check and verify their information?

Can't Question Them.

Only one thing stood out clearly: Until either of them chose to tell me, I could not query them concerning what they knew. Something deep within me forbade that. But I could—and did—feel, at Lillian's nearness to me, as if I were an exhausted swimmer sighting a life raft. I felt also, indeed, I knew, that I must tell her every detail I could remember of the bizarre experiences I had passed through in my brief sojourn at the Lansfield.

"I suppose I should begin at the beginning," I told her, and she replied with a laconic "please" that quickened my pace—mental and oral—as if it had been a rowel.

"You were with me when it began," I said. "You remember, in New Hampshire, at the camp, when the letter from Edith came?"

"Yes, I remember," she said, and I interrupted my tale with a question which had been troubling me ever since that day.

"Did you ever hear from Edith?" I asked.

She gave a short, metallic laugh.

Recalls Telegram.

"Did I? And how!" she said. "You know what I told you I was going to wire her?"

"That I was to busy to deal with her, and that you would represent me, but that if she told Dicky of your intervention, you would see to it that her plea for getting back to the magazine would be denied."

"Your memory isn't failing," she commented. "Well! I sent the telegram, and received one in reply reading something like this: 'Have no choice but to accede to your terms but consider it nothing more nor less than blackmail. Sometime it may be my turn. In the meantime will do as you say. Am writing.'"

Didn't Write.

"Oh!" I said, and relapsed into shocked silence.

"Exactly," Lillian commented dryly. "That's the way it affected me."

"Did she write?" I faltered.

"Not a line," Lillian answered. "She appears to have gone into the silence, a la Mahatma Gandhi. Let's hope she stays there, at least until we get this other mess straightened out. Don't waste any more time upon her. Spill me the beans about Dicky-bird."

"Just after Edith's letter came," I began. "Dicky said that he wished I would arrange to come into the city for a while, saying that he might need me 'at a minute's notice.' He semed to look upon Mr. Veritzen's request to have me share Mary's apartment as a direct boon from the gods, so I planned to go into the city at once and stay as long as he needed me. And then—"

My voice trailed off at the remembrance of that telephone call to Dicky at the Lansfield from the drunken woman, and the effort of the hotel manager to keep me from knowing the truth. For a moment it did not seem possible to repeat that humiliating experience, and Lillian evidently fathomed my feeling, for her voice was indulgently tender as she said:

"Take your time, old Dear. You didn't suppose I thought this was a chapter from a Sunday school story, did you?"

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

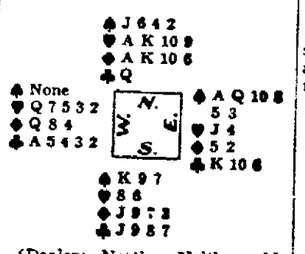
"The Authority on Authorities"

IMAGINATION PRICELESS

Keen imagination is a priceless ingredient of expert defense. Such plays as knocking out the side entry for the dummy's suit are easy for most players when the crucial cards are clearly in sight. But only the finished cardsman is likely to spring such a defensive coup when the suit and its indispensable entry are invisible, in the declarer's closed hand.



(Dealer: North. Neither side vul rable.)

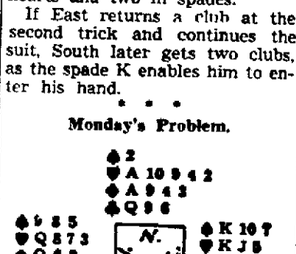
One-Heart was bid here by North as dealer. East overcalled with 1-Spade. South passed and West called 2-Clubs. North next bid 2-Diamonds, South 2-No Trump and North 3-No Trump.

The heart 3 was led by West. The 9 was played from dummy and East won with the J. East considered the situation very seriously before playing the next card. As West failed to lead spades, the K was no doubt in the South hand and very little else except possibly club stoppers. Based on this deduction, East laid down his spade A and followed with the spade Q, to rob South of any entries for finesses. He figured he could afford to give declarer two spade tricks in order to keep him on the board. This play limited declarer to eight tricks, four in diamonds, two in hearts and two in spades.

If East returns a club at the second trick and continues the suit, South later gets two clubs, as the spade K enables him to enter his hand.

* * *

Monday's Problem.



(Dealer: South. Both sides vulnerable.)

If South bids 1-Spade. North 2-Hearts, South 3-Diamonds, North 4-Diamonds, South 5-Diamonds and North 6-Diamonds, what should West lead?

Earl Averill Among Indians Slated To Go On Block

By ANTHONY J. PUGLIESE

NEW YORK—(INS)—Out of the ruins of the 1938 Cleveland entry, President Alva Bradley of the Indians today laid plans for moulding a serious contender for the American league pennant next season.

Bradley, who is thoroughly disgusted at the collapse of the Tribe this season after leading through the early stages of the American league race, has announced that the axe will fall on five or more of his players in an effort to revamp the team.

While Manager Oscar Vitt will be retained, according to Bradley, trades will be made involving Shortstop Lyn Lary, Outfielders Julius Solters and Earl Averill, and Infielders John Kroner and Sammy Hale. Although other Indians may go in the revamping, it was said Pitchers Bob Feller, Johnny Allen and Mel Harder will be kept.

The Indians yesterday split a twin bill with the league leading Yankees, taking the second game 8 to 5 after dropping the opener slugfest, 15 to 9. Lou Gehrig and Joe DiMaggio hit their 26th homers in the opener. In the nightcap, Willis Hudlin pitched five hit ball and Frankie Pytlak hit a homer, a triple and a single to drive in five runs.

Jimmy Foxx hit two home runs, two doubles and two singles to bring his lifetime hitting total over the 2,000 mark as the Red Sox took a 9 to 8, 10-inning struggle from the White Sox after losing the opener, 12 to 2.

The Browns and Athletics shared honors in a twin bill the Browns winning the nightcap, 6 to 4 after dropping the opener 11 to 6. Bob Johnson hit his 27th home run in the opener.

With Al Benton going the full route, the Tigers took a 9 to 3 decision from the Senators despite Zeke Bonura's 17th homer.

In the National league, the Pirates continued their slump which threatens their pennant claims by dropping their third straight to the Phillies, 6 to 4, as Al Smith held them to seven hits.

The Giants remained four and a half games back of the Pirates by dropping a 7 to 6 contest to the Cardinals as Don Gutteridge tripled for his third hit to drive in the winning run in the ninth. Joe Moore and Bob Seeds homered in vain for the Giants.

The Cubs, aided by a six run rally off Bill Posedel, beat the Dodgers, 7 to 3, as Clay Bryant hung up his 12th win and contributed a home run to the Chicago cause.

The Bees made it three in a row over the Reds by garnering 13 hits off Paul Derringer, including Vince DiMaggio's ninth home run.

Beeber-Ross Beers Whip Risingsun, 7-1, In Ohio Tournament

Fullager Allows Two Hits; Scheduled Again Tonight Under Elyria Lights.

THE Beeber-Ross Beers of Mansfield established themselves as early favorites in the state softball tournament last night when they defeated the Risingsun Merchants, 7 to 1, in a first round game.

The Mansfield district champions return to action at 8 p. m. today against the winner of the Warren A. C.-Columbus Fergusons game, scheduled at 9 a. m.

Semi-Finals Next.

If Manager Frank Beeber's men get past this game, they will appear in a semi-final game at 2 p. m. Sunday. The finals are billed at 4 p. m. Play will be continuous today, with the last game scheduled at 9 p. m.

Jimmy Fullager turned in another magnificent pitching performance last night. He allowed the Risingsun sluggers only two hits. Only three balls were hit out of the infield by the Fostoria area representatives.

Risingsun tallied its lone run in the first inning with the aid of an error. Errors by Kenny Ross and Hunt, mixed with a stolen base, gave the losers their tally.

A feature of the game was Bob Bride's home run in the fourth. It was the longest ever hit at enclosed Harmon field, and the first to be slapped over the fence there this season.

Tommy Moxley, who singled, was on base when the slugging first sacker unloaded his drive over the left field barrier. It was the only home run registered in last night's games

Beeber-Ross scored three times in the first inning to take a lead that was never threatened. Balbaugh reached first on an error, Aston walked, Harry Ross singled and Kenny Ross also singled to put across the runs.

Ed Henrich's triple gave the Beers two more tallies in the third, and Bride's Ruthian clout completed the scoring in the fourth.

Harry Ross bounced one over the left field wall late in the game, but it was held to a double by a ground rule.

Akron, Elyria Win.

It took the East Akron Eagles 10 innings to defeat the East Liverpool Fleetwings, 5 to 4, and one extra frame was required to settle the other tilt last night between the Bittner funeral home and Canton Eagles, Elyria winning by a 5-1 count.

Divers Vie At Liberty Pool Sunday

Schadek Defends Crown In District Low Board Meet.

Tony Schadek has a big job cut out for himself Sunday when he defends the north central Ohio district low board diving championship at the Liberty park pool.

The Mansfield diver will make an attempt to defend the laurels he won in the first annual tournament last year against the strongest field ever to compete in an event of this type in the city.

Included among Schadek's opponents is Dud Serwinski of Fremont, who was runner-up in the national interscholastic in Philadelphia last spring.

Another major threat is expected to be Earl Christy, also of Fremont, who was runner-up in the state interscholastic this year.

Other capable low board divers have entered to threaten Schadek's chances to successfully defend the crown. A number of Mansfield divers have entered, according to Russell Von Wieder, manager of the pool and director of the event.

The complete entry list: Schadek, Brad Smith, Joe Wendling, Pete Zimmerman and Katherine Fisher, Liberty park, Dick Shaw, Westbrook; Paul Wise, Ashland; Guy Simon, Morris Simon, John Hazelwood, Kenneth Wiley, George Smith and O. Hunter, Shelby; Serwinski, Christy, and Schultz, Fremont.

Schadek will be seeking his second diving championship of the year Sunday. He won the district high board title at the pool two weeks ago. Sunday's diving will get under way at 4 p. m.

MOORE, ENOS CROSS RACQUETS IN NEWS-JOURNAL MEN'S SINGLES FINALS AT WOODLAND COURT SUNDAY

A FAMILIAR face will be missing when the men's finals of The News-Journal city championship tennis tournament is staged at the Woodland court at 2 p. m. Sunday, but a worthy successor will be determined to replace him on top of the Mansfield net heap.

Missing from this year's singles finals for the first time in several years is Lowell Bourns, who was forced to default in his defense of the title because of an ankle injury.

His successor will be either Thornton Moore or Bob Enos, who collide in the singles finals Sunday, and both are capable racquet wielders.

Moore and Enos have been perennial contenders, and playing in the finals is no new experience for either star. Enos was a finalist last year in The News-Journal event, and Moore reached the finals several years ago when Harry Berno made his last appearance in competition in this city.

The semi-final match between Enos and Bob Keefe was completed yesterday. Darkness halted the semi-finalists Thursday after Enos had taken the first two sets, 8-6, 6-2. Enos took the postponed set 6-3, yesterday.

The women's singles and men's doubles championships were to be decided at Woodland today. Janie Kuhn, winner of the last News-Journal women's elimnation, and Mrs. Marty Campbell were to clash in the singles affair, and the doubles combinations of Moore-Johnny Foltz and Enos-Bob Spear were to meet in the other finals

The presentation of all trophies will be made at the conclusion of Sunday's singles finals by D. Osborne Meese, ardent Mansfield tennis enthusiast.

Sets World Trapshoot Mark

Highlight of the Grand American trapshooting tourney at Vandalia, O., is the new world long-run trapshooting record of 966 set by Joe Hiestand, 31-year-old Hillsboro, O., farmer. The former record was 714. Hiestand, shown on the course, later failed to win his class championship.

Old-Timers Return To Action Sunday At Annual Outing

Sunday will be the day of days for the ball players who once provided the entertainment on diamonds in Mansfield and vicinity.

The old-timers will stage their annual picnic at Spiker's grove, six miles out Marion avenue road, and, as usual, it will be featured by a ball game.

Clarence Hynson and Jeff Holmquist will captain the rival teams in the game, and they urge all old-timep layers of Mansfield and surrounding territory to be on hand for the fun. Players planning to take part in the game are requested to bring their own paraphernalia.

Hi-Speeds Pin Win Hopes in Series on New Hurlers Sunday

Deeds, Stahl to Oppose Legion In Twin-Bill Scheduled at League Park.

NOT the least bit discouraged by the defeat in the opening game, Earl Herrick's Hi-Speeds today considered their victory chances in the double-header that resumes the city semi-pro championship series with the American Legion at League park at 1:30 p. m. Sunday as good.

Their morale bolstered by the acquisition of two new moundsmen, the Hi-Speeds looked forward to Sunday's bargain bill with little worry.

Spl. Would Do.

The Hi-Speeds can gain the edge in the series Sunday, but a split in the twin-bill would not injure their championship hopes to any great extent.

Herrick and his ball club have no illusions about the Legionnaires, who have just completed their difficult Central Ohio league schedule, but they believe they can win with the strengthened mound staff.

"Soddy" Stahl and Lefty Deeds, a pair of veterans, are the new hurlers the Hi-Speeds will depend on for victories Sunday.

Hurl For Legion.

Opposing this pair of capable curve artists will be Harold Geiger and Donald Dudley, who hurled the Legionnaires to second place in the league race.

Announcement was made today that the second game of the twin-bill will be seven innings.

Claims Marathon Mark; Played 235 Holes In Day

LARCHMONT, N. Y.—(INS)—Frank Carino, 27-year-old New Rochelle engineer, today held a new golf marathon record—235 holes in a single day's play.

Carino finished the grind in 14 hours and 28 minutes of play at the rate of about 18 holes an hour. He played admirable golf for such a test, hitting many rounds in the 70's and getting no score higher than 88.

Two Umpires To Work Game At Prospect

Two umpires will be used in the play-off games to determine the second half championship of the City Class A softball league, President Sam Hollingsworth of the league announced today.

Tom Moxley and Darby Yarman, who have worked all of the league games, will be paired Monday when the teams of Prospect and Johns parks, which tied for a title, clash in the first game at Prospect park. Hollingsworth also announced that the game will start at 5:30 p. m.

The second game of the series will be played at Johns park Thursday, and the third game, if necessary, will be staged at Liberty park.

Wins Forfeit To Hold Edge

Forester Team Two Games Ahead of 'Masters.

The Schoolmasters remained two full games behind the Catholic Foresters in the fight for the championship of the Y. M. C. A. Club softball league after defeating the J. A. C. club, 26 to 8, at Liberty park yesterday in a postponed contest.

The Foresters held their edge by winning on a forfeit from the Local No. 40 club, which was unable to place a full team on the field.

Led by Fendrick and Fair, who collected four hits apiece, the Schoolmasters scored nine runs in the first inning, and won as they pleased. They also tallied nine in the last frame. Scoles coasted as he allowed the losers eight safeties.

Sunday's Softball Schedule in City

Strengthened by the addition of Villella, Fisher and Lemunyon, the Musille Cigars will face the Hartman Electrics in a benefit softball game at Prospect park Sunday afternoon. Ohio Unknown Wins Grand American Shoot

VANDALIA — (UP) — The 39th Grand American Trapshooting tournament was written into the record books today and, as usual, an unknown was marked up as winner of its blue-ribbon event.

He was Oretello W. (Ted) West, a 45-year-old highway superintendent from Coshocton, O., who won the Grand American handicap, an event which knows no favorites, until yesterday he had been shooting in tournaments for 17 years, including seven "grands," with little success.

West won the tournament's big event in a shoot-off against Parr Rhines, 37-year-old Marseilles, Ill., hardware dealer. Both died with 99 out of 100 targets in the regulation shoot, with West firing from the 20-yard line, Rhines from the 19. In the shoot-off, West hit 23 out of 25 "pigeons;" Rhines cracked 22.

BUYS RABBITS

Ohio in Market for 25,000 for State Distribution.

COLUMBUS — (UP) — The Ohio conservation council has gone into the market to purchase 25,000 rabbits, preferably a Missouri-bred species.

The council authorized Commissioner Lawrence Wooddell to buy the rabbits for release throughout Ohio after next Jan. 1. Principal distribution will be in southern and eastern Ohio counties.

Exact distribution of the rabbits will be determined according to reports of field agents and desires of sportsmen's organizations, Woddell said. The council placed 78,000 rabbits in the state last year at an average purchase price of 47 cents per animal.

NOTICE TO TAX PAYERS

Notice is hereby given that the returns and assessments of real property of Richland County, Ohio for the tax year 1938 have been equalized and revised by the Richland County Board of Revision. The values are completed and are open for public inspection in the Real Estate Department of the County Auditor's office, Mansfield, Ohio.

Complaint against any values or assessments of real property, except values and assessments made by the Tax Commission of Ohio, will be heard by the Richland County Board of Revision at the Court House in Mansfield, Ohio at its next regular meeting.

Complaints must be made in writing by the owner of the property on blanks furnished by the County Auditor and filed at the Auditor's office on or before the time limited for payment of taxes for the first half year.

Many property owners are of the opinion that real estate is appraised at a certain per cent of its true value. This is erroneous as the Constitution and Law of Ohio provides that real estate be appraised at 100% of its true value. In making the present equalization of values the Board of Revision has attempted to carry out this law on a reasonable basis.

The willingness of a complainant to sell property at the assessed value does not necessarily constitute a reason for reduction nor does the purchase price of a property at a forced sale necessarily fix the tax value. The law requires consideration of all factors and the Board must consider rental, sales, reproduction costs, asking price, book values, insurance values, amount of mortgages, etc.

Since the last actual reappraisal in 1925 a blanket reduction of approximately 40% has been allowed on all real estate values in the County Since that date a great many changes in the value of real estate have occurred. It is the object of this appraisal to recognize these changes and to assess each property on as fair basis as possible.

The Auditor, upon request, will furnish to any person the assessment of any tract, lot or parcel of real estate upon receipt of postage and last tax bill.

STOCKS REACT FAVORABLY TO SIMON'S SPEECH

Traders Encouraged By Briton's Remark That War Was Not Inevitable.

(By United Press)

NEW YORK—Stocks declined further in the early trading today on the European tension and steadied before the close following publication of Sir John Simon's speech.

The speech was interpreted favorably, especially Sir John's remark that war was not inevtable.

Considerable profit-taking was noted in the recently strong automobile group. Steels were better supported than most groups.

Bonds made an irregular decline. Wheat jumped more than a cent a bushel.

Principal volume centered on motor shares, with General Motors the most active stock. It touched 48¾, fell to 47⅞, off 1⅛ net and then rallied. Briggs lost nearly a point and Electric Automobile more than a point before meeting support.

In the railroad division, widest change was made by Albany & Susquehanna which made a new high at 115 up 15¼. Norfolk & Western sold at 166 off 5. Union Pacific lost 2 points.

Steel common touched 59⅛ off 1⅛ and then made up nearly all the loss. Bethlehem recovered to around the previous close from a decline of nearly a point.

NEW YORK EGGS

NEW YORK —(AP)— Eggs 14 688 firm. Mixed colors Special packs 24½-29c, standards 23¾c, firsts 22c; seconds 21-21½c; mediums 20½c, dirties, No. 1, 18¾-19¾c; average checks 16½-18¼c.

THEATER

"Marie Antoinette."

Before Irving Thalberg died two years ago he had selected "Marie Antoinette" as a vehicle for his wife, Norma Shearer. It is her first film since the death of her husband M-G-M is said to have spent more than two million dollars in making the picture and considerably more than a year went into its production It should provide Miss Shearer with a role second to none in her career, not even excepting Juliet. The picture has been magnificently staged and costumed in keeping with the lavishness and luxury of the French court just before the Revolution. Tyrone Power is seen in the role of the young Russian who, of all the decadent court, really loved Marie; John Barrymore is Louis XV and Gladys George plays the scheming Du Barry. Important roles are taken by Anita Louise, Robert Morley and Joseph Schildkraut. The picture opens at the Ohio with a midnight matinee tonight.

"Little Tough Guy."

The "Dead End Kids" appear in their third film since leaving the New York stage and coming to Hollywood. Fresh from their work in "Crime School," they are now presented in "Little Tough Guy," another story of boys raised in the tenement district of New York City. Tough Guy is a boy whose father is electrocuted for murder and whose mother is a slattern and a nag From this background and environment the picture traces his own development as a criminal and the stone wall which checked his career The romance of his sister runs parallel with his career. Helen Parrish, Jackie Searl, Robert Wilcox and Billy Halop are featured with the "Dead End Kids" The picture opens tomorrow at the Madison.

"All Quiet" Returns.

One of the greatest indictments against war was Erich Remarque's "All Quiet On the Western Front.' As a novel it was a sensation and when the picture was filmed several years ago it earned exile for Remarque, from his native Germany So long as Hitler is in power, the author can never return to his homeland He has since written "The Road Back" and "Three Comrades," all bitter indictments of war and its effects on the lives of young men and women. Universal made the picture with the late Louis Wolheim, Lew Ayres, John Wray, Slim Summerville, William Bakewell, the late Ben Alexander and others The film has been reissued and will be shown at the Majestic Sunday and Monday. "Stand-In," with Joan Blondell, Leslie Howard and Humphrey Bogart is the second film.

* * *

"Mannequin."

The appealing love story of a self-made millionaire and a beautiful girl from the tenements who determines to rise above her mother's sordid life, is told in "Mannequin," in which Spencer Tracy and Joan Crawford are starred at the Ritz. A romance of more than ordinary interest, exceptionally well acted, and a fashion parade made the picture one of the better ones of the season "Her Jungle Love," the second feature, is a Technicolor with Dorothy Lamour and Ray Milland in a romance between a cast-away aviator and a native girl on a South Sea island The beauteous Miss Lamour is again clad in one of her becoming sarongs—and nothing else.

Court Continues Hearing In Shelby Case, Orders City To Bring In Council Records.

fairs in past years were voiced by Atty. Van C. Cook, special counsel for the city of Shelby, during the hearing this morning. Judge Huston sustained most of the objections, reminding Biddle that the case involves the right of council to pass the ordinance.

Biddle called Mayor D. Bruce Young of Shelby; Theodore Lutz, Shelby director of law, and Brunk, the plaintiff, to the stand.

Directors of the Shelby Community Fair association, which sponsors the annual street fair, have announced that they will call off the fair if it cannot be held on Main street.

Brunk's business establishment is located on Gamble street, about 100 feet south of Main street, and he contends that closing the main thoroughfare cuts off the major outlet to his store and filling station.

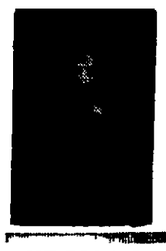
Industry Regains Half Year's Losses In Two Months

Not That It Matters



Why Should President Want to Take Hand In Ohio Election This Fall?

—By JANE WILLIAMS

THE PRESIDENT, it seems, is all a-dither at the unethical conduct of the Republicans who crossed party lines this year to vote in the Democratic primaries. They are, he sincerely feels, meddling in something that is none of their concern.

A few years ago the president would have been right. But it's an old American custom to fight Indians with the scalping knife—because the Indians pointed the way. The president pointed the way for "unethical political conduct" when he went into states to interfere with state affairs. And what's sauce for the chief is certainly sauce for the common peepul.

Another explanation of it is one that probably never occurred to him: there are still millions of Americans, now genuinely alarmed not only for the future of their government but for their own homes and future, who will cast party affiliations to the wind and vote for the men who give the greatest promise of fighting a one-man government, whether they are Republican or Democrat.

If the New Deal is defeated in 1940 it will take the combined efforts of both the old parties, standing shoulder to shoulder, to do it. It is easy to understand Mr. Roosevelt's uneasiness at the coalition in the primaries.

* * *

"UNCLE" Charlie West's announced intention of invading Ohio this fall to tell Buckeye voters how to mark their ballots will scarcely add prestige to either Robert Bulkley or Charles Sawyer, candidates for senator and governor, respectively.

If Ohioans are for the New Deal 100 per cent, they'll probably vote for Bulkley and if they're not they're likely to vote for Taft, but they don't need Mr. Roosevelt's chore boy to tell them where to write their "X" on the November ballot.

My personal reaction is that West invading Ohio's state elections to tell us whom we must elect as governor will hurt the Sawyer cause. Why is Mr. Roosevelt interested in Ohio's family affairs? According to the policies of Thomas Jefferson on state's rights, it's none of Mr. Roosevelt's business even if we want to elect the dog catcher governor of the state.

It's our state and we'll run it to suit ourselves. And that goes for the president of the United States and the college professor to whom he paid $10,000 of our money to run his errands.

* * *

NOW that Cleveland has begun to suspect that there are actually chiselers on the WPA and relief rolls, it's possible that other cities may wake up to the possibility—and do something about it. It would be so much more fair to the really deserving cases.

DOUGLAS CORRIGAN, the modest Irishman who has already found that the "longest way 'round is the shortest way home" now demonstrates that it is also the most profitable. R-K-O studio has announced that it was the succesful bidder for Corrigan's short subject picture, "My Flight To Ireland." Just what he is to get no one knows, but Warner Brothers admitted they dropped out of the bidding when the figure for Corrigan reached $75,000.

Let the boy make what he can for the brief while that the making is good. His day in the sun will be brief if his history parallels that of other sky blazers. Take a brief look at the history makers of only the last few years:

Bert Acosta was grounded permanently for reckless flying and now holds an obscure position in the aviation industry. Bernt Balchen, co-pilot for Admiral Byrd on polar flight hunted a job for years. Clarence Chamberlain is barnstorming to raise funds for his aviation experiments. Wiley Post couldn't get a backer before Will Rogers took a chance with him—and ended in death for both. Post's round-the-world associate, Harold Gatty, when last heard from, was an obscure flying instructor. Amelia Earhart got meager financial returns from her record flights. Only Lindbergh, who wanted oblivion, escaped it, and, according to friends, he lost most of his quick fortune in the search for his son.

Lawmaker Hurls Bribe Charge at Roosevelt

DECLARES U. S. FUNDS USED TO BUILD UP POWER

Wadsworth Tells 'Cornfield' G.O.P. Conference To Halt 'Browbeating' Tactics.

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON, Ind. — Rep. James W. Wadsworth, opening the 1938 Republican congressional campaign, charged today that President Roosevelt had "bribed" the American people with federal funds in an attempt to scuttle congress and the supreme court and building up his executive power.

"We may as well face the fact," Wadsworth said, "that he and his advisors despite the congress and the supreme court and so long as he sits in the White House every conceivable effort will be made to bring the congress and the court to subjection.

"Wherever we turn we are confronted with federal money—billions of it. It is used brazenly in tempting the states and their subordinate municiualities into acquiescence of federal power. To put it boldly, much of this tempting should be called bribery—the bribery of an unsuspecting people into acquiescence," Wadsworth said.

Hits 'Favorites.'

He charged that federal funds had been used to "browbeat and terrorize men in public life" and that the president had used the power of his office "openly and confidently in primaries and elections, in the allotment of funds, and in playing of favorites."

He joined John Hamilton, chairman of the national committee, and other party leaders addressed thousands of Indiana and midwestern Republicans at a "cornfield conference" on the farm of Homer Capehart, retired Hoosier industrialist. The conference, reminiscent of the "grassroots" G. O. P. rally at Springfield, Ill., in 1936, had the official blessing of the Republican national committee as the kick-off for the party's "off-year" congressional and senatorial campaigns

Wadsworth said that "we all rejoiced at the prospect" of the New Deal in 1933 and conferred powers on the president "never like them in history."

"But," he added, "Mr. Roosevelt's whole effort, scarcely suspected three or four years ago but now fully disclosed, has been and is to subdue the congress and the courts to the executive will."

He condemned the "element of force" in the president's "planned economy," and blamed the president's "court packing" proposal as the exact turning point which plunged the country from prosperity in 1936 into the depths of "the Roosevelt depression."

Capt. T. M. Bell, police department veteran who has stuck faithfully to his reducing diet of carrots and milk for the past several months was about ready to toss the whole plan overboard today. Not meeting with much success in the way of lost poundage, Bell went to a family reunion several nights ago and the next day found that he had gained — five pounds.

The large buckeye tree in Central park is doing its part this season to uphold Ohio's tradition as the Buckeye state. Located at the north side of the park, the tree is producing a large crop of buckeyes, which are useless except for ornamental purposes. The buckeye is becoming scarce in many sections of the state, and conservationists predict it will be extinct within a few years.

James R. "Bud" Harrington, flying instructor and Mansfield's No. 1 aviation enthusiast, was covered with blushes this morning at the airport when Mayor Claude M. Hunter, in greeting the air caravan from Cleveland, praised Harrington for his work at the airport. Harrington read in The News-Journal that the caravan was to land here and immediately got into action to prepare the field. He went to Plymouth and borrowed a power mower, mowed several acres of grass so that there would be safe runaways, and this morning had the four planes that are quartered at the hangar, polished and in formation on the field—all of which gave the impression that Mansfield did have an airport.

U. S. RECOVERY DEVELOPS NEW VIGOR IN WEEK

Industrial Activity Advances Seventh Consecutive Week, AP Survey Reveals.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK—The unusual recovery movement in business and industry which has been underway since June—the most pronounced summer rise since 1933—developed a new vigor this week.

In Europe, the cauldron of political and national strife still was boiling at hatred-heat; but economic life in the United States shook off the war-mongers' fears for the time being at least.

Reaches New High.

As shown by the Associated Press index of industrial activity, industry has gained back in two months as much as it lost in seven. The index, based on the years 1929-1930 as 100, reached a low point of 65.8 last spring. This week, it reached 77.8, advancing for the seventh consecutive week.

Steel production, not counting a very narrow decline two weeks ago, was up for the sixth straight week. Production in the nation's mills gained 2.4 points to 42.8 per cent of capacity, the highest since last November.

The building up of inventory of supplies of new materials by automobile manufacturers has been extending its benefits throughout industry. The automotive parts manufacturers have recalled men to work, increasing their output for the re-opening of automobile assembly lines.

On the whole, the Wall Street community, looking beyond the Labor Day holiday, regarded the outlook as even more hopeful than anticipated a few weeks ago. Reflecting this attitude, the stock market strengthened itself and tested the peak levels of the current recovery movement which it established in July.

The bond market showed improvement while commodities generally were steady.

While Europe's political troubles were far from settled, the foreign exchange market was relatively quiet. There still was a demand in the London free market for gold to hoard, but nothing to be compared with that of several weeks ago.

OHIO CHURCHMAN DIES

ZANESVILLE—(U.P.)—Erle C. Greiner, 57, for five years treasurer of the Ohio Synod of the United Lutheran church, died here yesterday.

OLD PLANT SITE SOLD AT LAST

County Successful In Third Attempt To Dispose Of Browning Property.

A third attempt by County Treasurer John E. Kolb to sell the old Browning Engineering company property on Longview avenue was successful this morning when W. W Purdy, president of the Purdy Construction company, purchased the lots for $3,400, two-thirds of the appraisal, at a sheriff's sale.

The selling price was less than one-third of the $11,300 in delinquent taxes due on the property. Originally valued at $15,000, the property appraisal was reduced to $5,100. The lots failed to attract bidders at two previous sales.

The sale was ordered on a foreclosure judgment against S. H. Squires, state superintendent of banks, who is in charge of liquidation of the defunct Union Trust company, Cleveland, former owner of the property.

A 49-acre farm in Mifflin township, sold on a tax judgment for $538 against Olive Ernsberger, was purchased by the Mansfield Building and Loan company for $1,750.

Three lots on West Third street, Mansfield, offered on tax judgments totaling $873 against the Farmers Savings and Trust company, as trustee, were sold to Carlton S. Fernyak and V. D. Coe, Mansfield. Fernyak purchased one lot for $30 and Coe the other two for a total of $122.

Two lots on Ludwig avenue, Mansfield, attracted no bidders. They were a part of the Farmers Savings and Trust company holdings.

FACES MURDER CHARGE

CHILLICOTHE — (INS) — Ira Walker, 54, colored barber has confessed to the murder of Fred Turner, 39, whose body was discovered Wednesday, Sheriff Joe Vincent announced today.

COUNCILMAN AND SON ORDERED INTO COURT ON LIQUOR CHARGES

Fred Miller, city councilman and operator of a tavern on Orange street, and his son, Joseph W. Miller, an employe of the tavern, had been ordered today to appear in court at 9 a. m. Tuesday on a charge of illegally selling whisky by the bottle.

Miller, who has been in Michigan on a vacation, was named last week in an affidavit charging him with selling whisky on Sunday. He has not been arraigned on this count. Joseph Miller was named today on two charges of illegal sale of liquor in bottles.

The filing of charges today against the two Millers made a total of six operators and tavern employes who have been cited in the past week by J. W. Eichelberger, state liquor investigator.

The others are Frank Miller, proprietor of the Cloverleaf cafe, North Main street; Robert Bair, an employe of the same establishment; F. J. VanArnhem, operator of Van's tavern, west of Mansfield; and Merle Garver, an employe at the tavern.

Frank Miller and VanArnhem pleaded innocent when arraigned last week on charges of selling on Sunday and were released under $250 bond each. They were ordered to appear Sept. 8 before Judge C. H. Huston in common pleas court.

Evidence resulting in the filing of the charges was obtained Sunday afternoon, Aug. 14, by Eichelberger who visited the three taverns within an hour, the affidavits assert.

PAY $60, COSTS

Operator Of Truck, Ashland Autoist Fined In Court.

Two out of town drivers paid fines totaling $60 and costs for violation of the traffic code when arraigned in municipal court today.

They were James Marbot, Canton, who pleaded guilty to a charge of operating a motor vehicle overweight and was fined $50 and costs, and Gilbert Vines, Ashland, convicted on a charge of careless and reckless driving, and assessed $10 and costs.

Vines was arrested by state highway patrolman L. D. Alexander at Windsor yesterday after he narrowly avoided a head-on collision with the patrol car as he passed a truck on the narrow highway, the officer said.

Marbot was arrested Aug. 12 by state highway patrolman on U. S. route 42, north of Mansfield for operating a freight truck which they said was overloaded.

FAIR ENOUGH!

Damon's old man doesn't mind material loss, but he does want just credit

—By WESTBROOK PEGLER

NEW YORK—Damon Runyon, sitting down to crack his knuckles the way he does before starting his daily story, took a look at a piece about the liquidation of William C. Durant's art treasures and horned his A at the point where Old Man Durant said he had enjoyed living with these possessions for 30 years and had no regrets. Mr. Durant is the ex-millionaire who once, even twice, was commander-in-chief of General Motors, but was running a beanery not so long ago

Damon said Mr Durant's feeling about the loss of material possessions reminded him of his old man's philosophy in such moments Damon's old man was a printer and editor out around Kansas and Colorado, and Damon says that whenever he lost possession of something—whether his little house, the farm that came and went or his pet shotgun—his old man would say that the joy of possession compensated the financial write-off.

* * *

I guess my old man's feeling would have been about the same about material possessions if he had ever had any He did take a claim to a quarter section of timber up around Hibbing, Minn., one time and put an Indian on it, according to the custom of those days, but the Indian jumped the fence and somebody came along to protest the claim on the ground that it wasn't being worked, and took it. According to the law, you had to settle on and work the piece yourself or get someone to do it for you, and it was common practice to get an Indian to build a cabin and putter around a little clearing between brannigans.

* * *

Anyway, my old man didn't mind. He had done a little shooting in his timber and had felt the pleasure of nominal ownership for a spell, so it was all even with him. You know—easy go.

As a reporter in the old get-the-story days in Minneapolis or Chicago he never was much bothered by accumulation, but there was rank and pride in the title of star reporter, and my old man was acknowledged a star by friend and foe I am not writing of my old man in the past tense, please, but only of those days. My old man is still in action, writing the story of his life and a phase of this country's journalism which has been depicted in terms of externals but never has had the benefit of an inside job.

I think the only pang my old man ever felt over a loss was along with various attempts to cloud his credit for the authorship of a melodrama of the white slave era called "Little Lost Sister" There is talk now of producing this show on Broadway, after 25 years, in the supercilious mood of the recent presentations of "The Fireman's Bride" and "Broadway After Dark."

* * *

My old man stands to get nothing out of this because he wrote the play in a week and sold it for $100 an act, cash on delivery, at a time when there was bad sickness in the family and he had to get money.

Well, it didn't seem much at the time, but it got its second wind after a while, and that play has been running, on the road as long as there was any road, in stock as long as there was any stock, in rep shows and on show boats on the Mississippi and the southern east coast ever since

* * *

For a time nobody else claimed authorship A woman named Virginia Brooks was named on the billing, but she was just a local vice crusader in whose name my old man had ghosted a series of sensational newspaper articles under the same title.

Maybe it was a lousy show, as the critical term goes nowadays, but it is beginning to make "Uncle Tom's Cabin" pant and look back, and my old man has always felt in a quiet way that those who enjoyed the material rewards could well afford to let him have his fair credit for a play which has been going a quarter of a century and is still full of run.

LOOT 2 PLACES

Burglars Enter Barber And Tin Shops, Get Suit, $5.

Police today were investigating the burglary of two downtown business establishments in which clothing and cash totaling $45 was taken at one place and an unsuccesful attempt to crack a safe was made at the other.

At Friedgren's barber shop, 74 North Diamond street, police said burglars entered a rear window and took a suit valued at 40 and looted the cash drawer of $5 in change.

Using similar methods, burglars last night ransacked the office of Coettl Bros. tin shop, 248 North Mulberry street, after failing to open a safe. Police said the combination had been knocked from the safe and the office desks and files ransacked. The burglary was discovered at 7 a. m. today by Karl Goettle, manager, when he opened the establishment.
